Be it bright or gloomy weather, Ye are husband true and wife. Ye have shared each other s pleasures, Since the first sweet dream of youth, Ripening into golden treasures, Made the vision noon-tide truth. And the flowers that round ye spring, Shedding perfume on your way, Ye are both a-gathering, As in love s young early May. And in aim and high endeavour Ye have joined hand in hand, And the notes of discord never Marred the happy household band. When the angel dread of sorrow From thy circle claimed his own; Sunshine broke upon the morrow, Cause ye did not weep alone. Sacred link! no time can sever, Binding fast in mutual trust; Holy love! that will for ever Rise o er e en the grave s cold dust! LINES TO A COUPLE OF FOURSCORE. WjjROUP after group have passed, and ye stand K1 As ye have done through many changing years; Together link d, and joining hand in hand, Sharing each other s hopes, and joys, and fears. Do ye look back on youth and noontide bright, Recalling many a sweet and early dream, When Love first cast around her halcyon light, And made all earth so beautiful to seem. Or do ye dwell upon the distant land Ye left your country and your home to seek? And do the waters of that far-off strand Seem sometimes now in melodies to speak? Or on the time when your glad home was blest...
